

Strategic Brief

Prepared by: Studio Nice One

June 2026 - Amended V3 (05.08.26)

1. Project Overview

Street82 is at a pivotal moment. With strong product quality, in-house manufacturing, and proven customer loyalty (56% retention rate), the brand has the foundations for significant growth. However, the current name and positioning lack the clarity needed to scale into new markets and segment the product offering effectively.

This project will define a new brand identity that honours your manufacturing heritage and product integrity, while creating room to expand into womenswear and position yourself distinctly in the Indian, Middle Eastern and international markets.

The focus is clear: less overt branding, more emphasis on quality and product. A visual identity that translates across all touchpoints, from labels to packaging, with potential for an icon-driven system that aligns with a new name.

2. The Challenge

The current name, Street82, creates several friction points:

- Lacks depth and meaning, inspired by a founder's birth year rather than brand values
- Sounds heritage-focused, contradicting your contemporary positioning
- Doesn't signal the quality, craftsmanship, or brand story

Product segmentation is also unclear. You're presenting sportswear, premium casual (Zara-level), and urban streetwear under one umbrella, making it difficult for customers to understand your positioning across markets.

The womenswear opportunity which is currently underutilized, needs distinct positioning and clarity to capture this growing segment.

3. Market Opportunity

Your expansion roadmap is strategic:

- India & Middle East: Near-term focus with potential for significant market scale
- Europe & Australia: Long-term ambition for premium positioning

- Domestic expansion: Additional retail presence in Sri Lanka

A clear, internationally-recognized brand identity is essential. Street82 doesn't translate as premium to these audiences. A new name which is short, memorable, consisting of two syllables, combined with visual identity will position you as a quality-driven brand ready for global expansion.

4. Your Competitive Advantage

Unlike most fashion brands, Street82 manufactures entirely in-house. This is a powerful differentiator:

- 100-wash guarantee: Unique durability promise in a climate-challenged market
- Limited editions: Creates exclusivity and urgency without fast-fashion waste
- In-house design & manufacturing: Full control over quality, materials, and customization
- 100% Sri Lankan team: From designers to factory workers. A genuine local story, eliminating cheap labour with real faces behind the process.

5. Strategic Approach

We recommend a structured, phased approach:
